() Adjusted EBITDA is a non-IFRS earnings measure, therefore it does not have any standardized meaning prescribed by International Financial Reporting Standards and may not be similar to measures presented by other companies. Adjusted EBITDA represents earnings before interest, income taxes, depreciation and amortization adjusted for the impact of transactional foreign exchange. Management uses this measurement to evaluate the operating results of the Company. This measure is also important to management since it is used by the Company's lenders to evaluate the ongoing cash generating capability of the Company and therefore the amounts those lenders are willing to lend to the Company. Investors find Adjusted EBITDA to be useful information because it provides a measure of the Company's operating performance.

GUELPH, ONTARIO – July 28, 2026

Hammond Manufacturing delivered record revenue and earnings in the second quarter of 2026, reflecting continued strength across North American markets and a temporary reduction in US tariff-related costs.
